[LAS VEGAS, NEV.] August 31, 2009 – Who says there is no such thing as a free lunch?

On Labor Day, Fazoli's will provide free pasta, breadsticks and salad to 100 workers at Goodwill of Southern Nevada's Processing Center.

Fazoli's local owners, Megan and Steve Keith, think it's a great way to give back to their community. "Many people have to work on Labor Day, including some at Goodwill of Southern Nevada. These workers provide a great service to the community. We wanted to thank them with some free food," Megan Keith says.

Employees at Goodwill's Processing Center go through the thousands of donations that are made to the charitable organization every day. These items are sorted, priced and shipped out to Goodwill stores around the Valley. The money raised from the sale of these items fund Goodwill's free job placement and education services. Since January 1st, Goodwill of Southern Nevada has helped about 700 people find employment in a down economy and provided services to thousands more.
